Supervisor Rubio Celebrates Start of Rexland Acres Sewer Project

Kern County Supervisor Michael Rubio is pleased to announce that he will hold an official groundbreaking for the Rexland Acres Sewer Project. All Rexland Acres community residents, public officials and representatives from the media are invited to attend.

The Supervisor is extremely excited that residents in Rexland Acres will finally be able to have properly functioning sewer systems in their homes. For far too long, residents were forced to send their wastewater through PVC pipes out of their homes and into the street. Needless to say, this practice compromised the health and wellbeing of everyone in this hardworking community. This groundbreaking is a testament to the hard work demonstrated by local, state and federal agencies in helping bring this vital project to fruition. With persistent guidance, Supervisor Rubio was able to secure over $9 million in funding for this sewer construction.

“Within my first two years in office, I am proud to say that we will provide a safe and healthy environment for the residents of Rexland Acres,” Rubio said. “After over nine long years of community meetings and planning, I stand side-by-side with the residents of this community who had begun to question whether this project would ever become a reality. I look forward to grabbing a shovel and getting to work building this much anticipated sewer system for Rexland Acres.”
